Advanced Literacy and Reading Development

During the Foundation Stage 2 year, children aged four to five begin strengthening the literacy skills introduced in earlier stages. This period marks an important shift where children move from simply recognizing letters and sounds toward applying those skills in reading and early writing. At our nursery in Mirdif, Dubai, the FS2 program focuses on building confident communicators who are prepared for the literacy expectations of primary school.

Phonics plays a central role in early reading development during this stage. Children deepen their understanding of how letters and sounds combine to form words. Through structured phonics activities, they begin blending sounds together and recognizing simple words within books and classroom materials. These exercises help children connect spoken language with written text in a meaningful way.

Reading sessions become more interactive and engaging as children develop stronger listening and comprehension skills. During group reading activities, children are encouraged to follow along with stories, identify familiar words, and discuss characters and events. Educators ask questions about the storyline and invite children to share their ideas, helping them develop confidence in expressing their thoughts.

Children also begin recognizing patterns within written language. They may notice repeated words in books, identify rhyming sounds, or observe how sentences are structured. These early observations support reading comprehension and build familiarity with written communication.

Writing development progresses significantly during FS2. Children begin practicing letter formation and may attempt to write simple words, labels, or short sentences. Activities such as journaling, drawing with descriptive captions, and writing their names help children develop the motor coordination and confidence needed for writing.

Vocabulary development also expands during this stage. Through conversation, storytelling, and classroom discussions, children learn new words that allow them to describe experiences, ask questions, and communicate ideas more clearly. Educators encourage children to speak confidently and participate actively in discussions.

Parents searching for a nursery in Mirdif that prepares children for primary school often prioritize strong literacy development. By combining phonics instruction, reading experiences, and early writing practice, our FS2 program ensures children build the language skills needed for academic success.

At our Dubai nursery, literacy is approached as both a skill and a source of enjoyment. By nurturing a love for reading and storytelling, we help children become confident learners who are ready for the challenges of the next stage of education.
